POST-DOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP AWARD 2018

DST/NRF South African Research Chair Initiative (SARChI) in Gender and Childhood Sexuality: violence, inequalities and schooling is pleased to announce ONE SARChI Post-Doctoral Fellowship for 2018. The fellowship award is 1 year and valued at R200, 000 per annum. There is a possibility of an extension for an additional 1 year dependent on progress. The selected fellow will be attached to the DST/NRF Research Chair (SARChI) held by Professor Deevia Bhana. The DST/NRF South African Research Chair in Gender and Childhood Sexuality undertakes research designed to build best practices for health/sex/HIV education and gender equality. The research involves conducting research with children and young people in and around schools and includes research with teachers, families and community health workers.

RESEARCH TOPICS

Topics being investigated include a focus on children and young people's meaning of gender and sexuality, gendered violence, teenage relationship dynamics, teenage pregnancy, the construction of young masculinity and femininity, same-sex sexualities and schooling, HIV, teachers, family and community responses to supporting schools.
