

Neoliberalism, Gender and Curriculum Transformation in Higher Education Project

PhD Scholarship Opportunities

The Neoliberalism, Gender and Curriculum Transformation in Higher Education project is a collaboration between University of KwaZulu-Natal and the University of Illinois (USA) system funded by the Andrew W Mellon Foundation. The project aims to enhance the academic careers and wellbeing of early-career women academic staff who tend to be underrepresented in institutions. It aims to facilitate a community of practice (CoP) that will involve a network of women academics from collaborating institutions.

PhD Scholarship: The project has scholarship opportunities for TWO PhD students, renewable for a period of three years (dependent on satisfactory progress).

Minimum Requirements:

- Master's Degree in Education or related field
- An interest in Gender and Higher Education and/or Neoliberalism, Gender and Higher Education
- Willingness to work with a team of researchers in the project

Post-Doctoral Research Fellowship: The project seeks to appoint ONE post-doctoral research fellow for a period of up to two years (renewable annually depending on satisfactory performance).

Minimum Requirements:

- A PhD in Education or related field
- An interest in Gender and Higher Education and/or Neoliberalism, Gender and Higher Education
- Willingness to work with a team of researchers in the project

Enquiries and details regarding the project should be directed to: Professor Relebohile Moletsane moletsaner@ukzn.ac.za.

To apply, please submit the following documents to Nokuthula Magudulela: MagudulelaM@ukzn.ac.za

- a) a short letter/essay outlining their interest in the area of research and future plans for advancing research in the field; and
- b) copies of degree certificates and transcripts of previous qualifications.

The closing date for receipt of applications December 15, 2019